Special Supplement for James City County Citizens

JCC TV48 Programming Survey

April - May 2005
www.jccEgov.com

James City County citizens – JCC TV48 is your outlet for local government programming. County government channel 48 is carried by the cable operator as one component of its government/educational/public access television system. JCC TV48 is available to Cox cable subscribers with “limited” or more tiers of cable service.

In May and June, County cable subscribers will receive via their cable bills a JCC TV48 programming survey. When you receive it, please take a few moments to complete it and let us know your thoughts on local government programming. Though the surveys will be distributed in your cable bills, your completed surveys will be returned to the County’s Communications Office – they’re self-addressed and postage paid.

The survey is designed to solicit your opinions on the shows you like to watch, those you don’t like and why, and your suggestions for better serving the local government television community.

If you haven’t tuned into JCC TV48 – now’s a great time to see the many valuable programs we produce for you. Programming includes the live broadcast of James City County Board of Supervisors and Planning Commission meetings as well as Williamsburg City Council and Planning meetings. Through a unique switching device, County and City meetings are shown live simultaneously in both localities.

Williamsburg/James City County School officials prepare for a live call-in show on the third high school.

During the 2003 update of the County’s Comprehensive Plan, local youth participate in a televised youth forum.
